- Pancreas - Both a digestive & endocrine organ. In its digestive function it releases digestive enzymes into the small intestine that break down carbohydrates & proteins. In its endocrine function it produces insulin & glucagon & glycogen, which together work to regulate blood sugar levels.
- Liver - Has 4 lobes produces bile which contains enzyme that break down fats. Also the body's major waste filter. via the hepatic portal system blood is filtered through special functional cells called hepatocytes.
- Large Intestine - Has a special area called the caecum which specializes in breaking down plant material. Primarily responsible for absorption of water.

Name - Rabhya Bahirudulla Khatoli

Class - BSc 2

PRN No - 2023060349

Roll No - 21

Sem - II

Subject - Zoology

Paper III - Animal Diversity & Insect vector

1. Describe the Digestive System of Rat.
- • Mouth - digestion begins in the mouth. Rat teeth grow continually so they need to eat hard foods to wear down their teeth. If the teeth are misaligned (a condition called malocclusion) it can cause fatal injury.
- Esophagus - After swallowing, food moves through the esophagus. wave-like muscular contractions along the esophagus, called peristalsis, move the food along through the esophageal sphincter & into the stomach.
- Stomach - The stomach uses mechanical & chemical digestion to break down food further. Three layers of muscle contract in different directions to break down food mechanically. Gastric acid (hydrochloric acid) & protein-digesting enzymes are released into stomach for chemical digestion. Different sections of the stomach: cardiac region, fundus, body & pylorus.
- Small Intestine - food then passes into the small intestine via the pyloric sphincter. In the upper portion of the small intestine (the duodenum) digestion continues via secretion of pancreatic digestive enzymes from the pancreas (via the pancreatic acid duct) to the lower portions of the small intestine (the jejunum & ileum), nutrient absorption occurs via intestinal villi which line the inner surface of the intestine. Nutrient absorption occurs via intest. pass. across villi wall to surrounding capillaries & into bloodstream.

Summary : An open book test for a B.Sc. class typically allows students to refer to their textbooks, notes, and other study materials during the exam. The purpose of this type of assessment is to evaluate the student's understanding of the subject matter, critical thinking skills, and ability to apply concepts rather than memorization. In an open book test, questions are often designed to be more complex and require higher-order thinking skills, such as analysis, synthesis, and evaluation. Students are expected to demonstrate their ability to find and use relevant information from their resources to answer questions effectively.
